JOANNE LECLAIR COOKING UP SUCCESS

For Joanne Leclair, cooking is not only her area of expertise – it is also her passion. After an absence from working in the kitchen, she realized that she needed to refresh her skills before she could re-enter the world of professional cooking.

“I needed to upgrade and become more current with my education and experience,” said Leclair. “SAIT’s Professional Cooking program was a perfect match based on my background and future goals.”

While attending SAIT, Leclair won the Bruce Sudden Memorial award that honoured a man who was a lifelong learner and wanted to reward future students who held the same, hard-working values.

“I applied for this award for a number of reasons,” said Leclair. “I believe I am the embodiment of a lifelong learner and I am honoured to have received this particular award. I am someone who has pursued and left a career, known and conquered illness and raised children. I continuously strive to learn and grow as a person. Choosing to go to SAIT was just one more step on that continuum.”

Leclair graduated with honours in December 2008 with a Professional Cooking diploma and she is now using her talent to teach and be a role model to others.

I will be volunteering as an ambassador in the area of “Patisserie” for WorldSkills Calgary 2009 in August and September,” said Leclair. “In 2010 I plan on applying for teaching positions in food studies at the high school level. In the meantime, I will be developing cooking modules and presentations that are based on experiences I’ve gained in the field and knowledge I’ve acquired from SAIT.”
